

DUAL ACCESS CARGO SYSTEM FOR OUTERWEAR
ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A convertible garment, such as from a garment to a fanny pack, having a first material portion affixed to the outside surface of the garment over an opening formed in the garment defining a first chamber for holding an object therein, including a first zipper providing access through the first material portion. A second zipper is located in the opening in the garment that is under the first material portion. A second material portion having a third zipper therein is affixed to the inside surface of the garment defining a second chamber for holding an object therein. When the second zipper is open, the first and second chambers are in communication with each other, so that an object placed in the first chamber when worn as a garment can be accessed after the garment has been converted to a fanny pack by opening the second zipper.